Dear Newmanites,

As I prepare to leave Tucson at the end of this month, I want to thank you for your hospitality over the past year. You have truly made me feel not just welcome, but a part of the community – the family – here at the Newman Center since the day I first arrived last August.

From the undergraduate students I have been blessed to work with on a daily basis, to the graduate students, families, and individuals I have grown with in my time here, thank you.

As many of you already know, at the end of this month I fly down to Mexico for 2 months of Spanish study in San Miguel de Allende. After that, I will travel up to Oregon for a few weeks of vacation time with my fellow student brothers before returning to the Bay Area to resume studies this fall. If all continues according to plan, I will be ordained to the priesthood in the summer of 2018. Please pray for my brothers and me as we continue our formation and discernment of God's will in our lives.

I will truly miss this community, and look forward to the day when I may be able to return and serve here again.

God bless,
Br. Kevin
