

Fr. John Paul's Spiritual Brew

Today's Gospel invites deeply into discipleship. If we want to be followers of Jesus we must "hate" 'to be without love'- for anything that would impede us from being committed to following Jesus.

To be a disciple means allowing ourselves to be teachable, and able to be formed into the person of the loving master. In our case, Jesus is this Master.... And, to followed him is to discover the road that leads to life.

The road is narrow and requires only what Christ tells us to bring. It's not always easy to climb, and often we will not be in charge of our schedule and destination. We will be invited to use gifts and talents that we are aware of, and others that we hide. We won't always travel in comfort on this road, but we will discover a love, freedom, and inner strength that is unmatched to any... And, a transformation that will light our way through any darkness.

This is who our God is...

Today we gather with Bishop Weisenburger for the Mass of the Holy Spirit. We come together as a "Blessed" community hungry for God's Spirit to stir within us... and in all of our efforts at the beginning of a new school year.

May we listen to how God invites us to build his kingdom through our study, research, community life, faith formation, liturgical life, social justice, and outreach! Welcome to your community!
