Fr. John Paul's Spiritual Brew

We hear the parable of the man whose harvest was so abundant that his barns could no longer contain it. His solution? Tear them down and build bigger ones so that he can “eat, drink, and be merry” in retirement. Not a terrible plan, in and of itself. But the problem lies in his only seeing this as an option. What about sharing his abundance with others in need? What about recognizing that his blessings were not just for him, but for the good of others as well? Like Martha—whom we heard about two weeks ago—he’s anxious and overly focused on the wrong things. This parable challenges us to examine how we respond to our own blessings. Do we hoard, or do we share? Do we isolate, or do we connect? Stewardship invites us not only to manage what we have well, but to be mindful of our interdependence with all of humanity.

Amen! Alleluia!
