Fr. John Paul's Spiritual Brew

To be light and salt for the world is to live with purpose and with passion. And yet, life gallops. It moves with intention—but also with distraction, noise, and a kind of busy blindness. And if we're honest, sometimes we get trampled by its relentless motion. Jesus knows this. At the very beginning of his public ministry—after his baptism by John, after fasting, after temptation in the desert—Jesus climbs a hillside near the Sea of Galilee. And there, He speaks to people who are exhausted... questioning... trying to make sense of lives that feel pulled and shaped by forces beyond their control. And to them—And, us....ordinary, worn, searching people... He says something extraordinary: "You are the light of the world. You are the salt of the earth." In that moment, Jesus rises and breathes—once again God's magnanimous Spirit into fragile, clay souls by the sea. He bids them to arise—just as in the Book of Genesis. As the poet James Weldon Johnson so beautifully writes: "And God bent over the clay, and worked it with his hands, and blew breath into it, until it arose and came to be."

In today's Gospel, Jesus uses the simple but powerful images of salt and light to reveal how God 'intends' to bring 'deep healing' to the world. And this is important for us to hear especially, in a culture that is so privatized and 'individualistic'. We often assume religion is something personal, something meant to 'improve' my life, my peace, and my fulfillment. That's not wrong... but, it's also not the whole truth. Because 'faith'—real faith is never meant to be kept to oneself. It is meant to be like salt, like light, like a city set on a hill—visible, shared, offered for the sake of others. By virtue of our baptism into Christ Jesus, we have been 'entrusted' with this salt and this light, not to hoard it, not to hide it, and certainly not to let it go flat. These are gifts from God—gifts with active ingredients. They are meant to 'draw out' the best flavors within us, to illuminate what has been dimmed and to wake us up and when we are awake, we can (better) receive God's life and (then) pour the 'flavor' of grace into the culture and the world around us. (For) This light and salt were never meant 'only' for ourselves. (For) As followers of Jesus, we are called to be salt—to 'preserve and enhance' what is best in our society and to heal... Profoundly... all that is broken or unjust!

We are called to be light and a resting presence to help others see what is truly worth seeing to 'shine' on what is beautiful and life-giving, and yes, to reveal... what is unhealthy and contrary to God's illuminating Spirit. That is 'why' our call includes working for greater justice, peace, and charity. And as we celebrate Black History Month, we remember women and men of faith—many of them called and formed in the church who refused to hide their light. They trusted that God's Spirit was still breathing life into clay, still raising voices, still calling people to stand, to speak and to shine, in the face of darkness. And as we stand together within this centennial season, of our own community. We remember that for one hundred years-this place has been called to the same mission—to be a light on a hill, to be salt for this campus, to trust that God is still at work, still breathing, still calling us forward. The message of today's readings is clear: without vibrant, healthy, balanced, and loving Christians, the world grows darker. So the question is this: Will we hide our destiny—our call to be God's light and salt for the world? Or will we let the flavor rise? and the light shine? So let us be courageous and let us each in our own way, let our little lights shine. May We Be One!

Amen! Alleluia!
